Fleeto

by Paddy Cunneen
ISBN 978-1-906220-28-0
October 2009
Price PB £6.99

Knife crime is a very real threat to many young people in the UK today and this play by Paddy Cunneen tackles the issues head on. The play had a successful tour of the UK in 2007 and is now being produced in Europe.

'A powerful and beautifully produced short play for Scotland today. . .

Essentially Cunneen takes the iambic rhythm of Shakespearean verse and applies it to the story of a modern day Glasgow street stabbing, in which a student is killed by a rampaging white gang while trying to defend an Asian friend from their indiscriminate, vengeful rage. . . this is like Berkoff with fewer verbal fireworks but with added heart, soul and music, and a challenging Glasgow twist.'

Joyce MacMillan, The Scotsman, November 2007

Witches of Pollok

by Anne Downie
ISBN 978-1-906220-36-5
August 2010
Price PB £9.99

A gripping account of a true story of accusations and counter-accusations around the illness of Sir George Maxwell of Pollok. Five people were burned at the stake in 1677 for the alleged bewitching of Sir George Maxwell of Pollok. The person instrumental in their being brought to trial, was a stranger to the area named Janet Douglas, whose extraordinary powers puzzled the intelligentsia of the day . . .
